

Message for Swallow Class

Dear Swallow Class,

It must seem strange to receive a letter from your class teacher at a time when we would be chatting at school every day. In our household, the learning day normally starts with the Joe Wicks workout on YouTube. This is followed by maths, English and SPaG activities. As a family, we try to play one board game a day, Scrabble being my favourite.

I am pleased to see from the online websites that many of you are continuing your learning at home on these. I can see that some of you are using RM Maths and therefore I have changed some of your levels so that there is an extra challenge. On TT Rockstars, I have set up a battle of the bands with Swallows class which will start on Friday 3rd April and will end on the 1st May – ‘Come on you Swallows.’ You should be able to find extra activities on Maths Shed too. I will be setting up some tasks on Education City soon.

Remember to keep up your reading, however I have just read in the news that David Walliams is releasing a series of 30 daily audio stories to listen to for free at Harper Collins Soundcloud.

I will be in touch again after Easter. Enjoy the sunshine (if it's still sunny when you receive this letter).

Regards,

Miss Gray
